The beginning of the new year ought to be the most appropriate time to consider the subject of insuring your real estate or personal property against loss by fire. It is an established fact (and the statistics of fires will bear out this assertion) that the fire fiend seems to have a decided preference for the unincured. To secure a policy in a reliable company ought to be the next consideration. As due weight may be justly given to efficient and honorable directors of a company, and a splendid record for prompt payment of losses, it decides us to suggest for their patronage one of our excellent home companies—the Arilington Fire Insurance Company for the District of Columbia, office No. 1806 Pennsylvania avenue, north of the United States Treasury, which has in addition to its intrinsic merits adopted the lowest equitable standard rates for issuing policies. Let young ladies not fail to take this course of lectures. Several grandmothers attended the last course of mother lectures for the benefit of their grandchildren, and all expressed their appreciation and grateful acknowledgment to the lecturer.
